DETAILED ACTIONClaim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35

U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

1. Claim 49 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Peng et al (US 2002/0065309-A1 05-2002). Peng discloses (paragraphs [0012]-[0026]) compounds of formula (I) as GnRH antagonists:

Art Unit: 1621

Peng exemplifies (paragraph [0172]) the synthesis of a compound of formula (I) employing the aldehyde 3-hydroxy-4-methoxyphenylacetaldehyde:

which corresponds to lower adjacent homologue of the instantly claimed compound lacking a single methylene in the aldehyde chain.

The difference between the compound exemplified by Peng and that instantly claimed is that the instantly claimed compound is an adjacent higher homologue of that exemplified by Peng.

One of ordinary skill in the art would have been motivated to make the instantly claimed compound by the expectation that the adjacent homolog of the compound of formula (I) produced therefrom would have similar properties to the compound exemplified by Peng. This expectation would have been reinforced by Peng's teaching (Paragraph [00057]) that L<sub>3</sub>, corresponding to the chain connecting the phenyl and aldehyde groups, can be a chain of 1-24 carbon atoms. There would, therefore, also have been a reasonable expectation of success.

Thus the instantly claimed compound would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art.

Conclusion

2. Claim 29 is pending. Claim 29 is rejected.
